SOURCE OF INFORMATION

ELLIDI. — Reykjavik, Feb. 11. — Icelandic trawler Ellidi foundered last night in heavy weather west coast Iceland. Twenty-six of crew saved by trawler Jupiter, liferaft with two still missing.

ELLIDI. — London, Feb. 12. — Trawler Ellidi: The following message has been received from Reykjavik, dated Feb. 11: Ellidi sank last night in a gale off west coast of Iceland. Two of crew missing. (See issue of Feb. 12.)

Reykjavik, Feb. 11. — Two seamen from the Icelandic trawler Ellidi were to-day found frozen to death after spending a night drifting off the west coast of Iceland in a rubber dinghy. The men had left the trawler on Saturday night (Feb. 10) when she sprang a leak after shipping a heavy sea and appeared to be sinking. They put out a line which connected them to the trawler but it parted during a gale. Rescue ships answering an S O S from the Ellidi reached the trawler just in time to save the other 26 crew members, who had stayed on board, before she sank. They then began searching for the missing dinghy. To-day, a search plane from a United States base in Iceland spotted the dinghy, but when ships reached it the men were dead.—Reuter.
