LLOYD'S REGISTER

Amst.
LONDON

S.

Dear Sir,

In reply to your classing letter of the 25th instant, regarding the RMC of the m.v. "NOORDAM", Rotterdam report No. 27376, I beg to state that the figures for the coolingtest as given on the report are correct.

The final temperature required by the Owners specification is 0° F., which temperature has not been reached.

The statement on the report that the final temperature was not low enough for frozen cargo is wrong, but the temperature rise of 10° C. after expiration of 18 hours is in my opinion rather much. (this is usually 4-5° C.).

This rise in temperature was caused by leaking ventilator dampers as stated on my report, and which may explain my recommendation.

It has been arranged with the Owner's Superintendent to place these ventilator dampers in order and to hold an additional cooling test, upon the vessel's return from her present voyage to this port.

I am, Dear Sir,

Yours faithfully,

The Secretary,
LONDON.
