Lat

I have duly examined the spare parts of the machinery, required by the Rules, and found same to be all on board, and in good order and condition.

As regards the salvage gear, I may say that the necessary pumps and other items, are not yet placed on board, although, the owner, who still desires to class the vessel for salvage service, promises from time to time, to put same in order.

At present the vessel is employed in salving lost anchors and cables and other harbour services.

I may say that I have not yet been able to collect the balance of my fees, viz. £20.
