To Mr C. Westcott

Dear Sir

I understand from the captain of the s.s. Fremington that she is leaking and he expects that some of the cargo is damaged.

Will you please proceed to Fremington and examine any of the cargo that is damaged and let me know what the damage is.

I have asked Captain Jewell and the engineer to try and do whatever little repairs are required so that she can load her cargo this time., as I presume that it is only a question of a rivet being loose or a bit of caulking but please survey the cargo on my behalf and as this is a case in which the steamer herself will have to bear the expenses I trust you will put your fee as low as possible.

Yours truly
