Special Survey No.2 due May 1898.

In August last the Dunedin Surveyor wrote that the Owners had promised to carry out this inspection when the vessel was docked about the end of the year. About the 14th February he stated that in consequence of business pressure no time was afforded for the survey to be held when the vessel was docked, but that the marine superintendent promised that the survey would take place early in May, at which date the New Zealand Government Engineer's Annual Inspection would be due.

In a letter dated the 11th May received from the Surveyor he states in regard to the surveys which are overdue on the vessels belonging to the Company that the matters are before him and will be attended to as opportunity occurs. He finds that the Owners cannot always keep their promise as to the time of Survey but are always ready to allow surveys to be made when convenient to them. He therefore does not press them.
