Dear Sir
Received yours concerning the S.S. "Emerald" the fee for the survey of the Hull which has been paid in the same manner as the other vessels we have built viz:- the "Puffin", "Dunlin", "Alice", "Pioneer", & "Emerald", all these vessels the owners supplied their own machinery, same as the above "Emerald"; all the Engineers paid their own fees on the machinery except in the case ~~of the case~~ of the above "Emerald" whose Owners did not want their machinery classed.
The question is those who ordered the machinery be surveyed ought to pay the fee we know we never ordered the machinery to be surveyed, the owners also say that they never ordered machinery be surveyed & refuse to pay, no your fee.

& the only grounds we have not entitling us to pay machinery fee are, that it was never pointed out to us before this, that had signed a missive unawares making liable for survey fees both on machinery & to Hull as well. Seeing you cannot recover the fee from the Engineer or Owners you now hold us liable & our chances of recovering anything are far more remote than yours.

We now offer you £5 in settlement of this misunderstanding which we hope you accept & that you will kindly survey this other vessel we have to build.

We are

Dear Sir

Yours Truly
