We did so and saw that the ship was becoming more and more submerged. Her list, too, increased to a dangerous angle. Towards 7 o'clock the master of the Pegaway informed us that he could no longer keep the ship afloat and had decided to abandon her. We immediately lowered a lifeboat. The storm was terrible, but we finally succeeded in rescuing all 19 men of the crew. This operation was concluded at about 7.45 a.m. We are now on our way back to Hamburg, where we shall arrive to-morrow at noon. — Reuter.
