SOURCE OF INFORMATION.

OVERDUE VESSEL

TAVRIS.—London, Dec. 4.—The owners' agents of the steamer Tavris received on Dec. 3 the following cable from the owners: Tavris left Dedeagatch (Alexandroupolis) on Nov. 25 for Piræus with full cargo of wheat, since then have no news.

Piræus, Dec. 4. — Greek steamer Tavris, not fitted with wireless, is reported to have sailed from Dedeagatch (Alexandroupolis) on Nov. 25, loaded with 740 tons wheat for Patras, and is very much overdue. Grave fears are entertained for her safety, whereabouts unknown. The Government at request of the owners sent seaplane in search. Steamer Danapris, belonging to same owners, in way of Piræus, searching. It is reported that hull is insured for £8000 and cargo for £10,500.

TAVRIS.—London, Dec. 10.—The following message has been received in London from the owners of the steamer Tavris: Lifebelt and pieces of lifeboat of Tavris found near Skopelos.

TAVRIS.—Piræus, Dec. 14. — Steamer Tavris is now considered as lost, no news of her having been received since Nov. 25, when she left Alexandroupolis. A lifebelt bearing the name Tavris was picked up near Skopelos Island some days ago, and the remains of a boat and a pilot's ladder presumed to belong to the vessel were found in the same locality.

TAVRIS.—London, Jan. 19.—In reply to inquiry with reference to the Greek steamer Tavris, which left Alexandroupolis on Nov. 25 last for Patras, Lloyd's Agents at Thessaloniki write under date of Jan. 15: Vessel believed lost with all hands off Skopelos Island.
