OVERDUE VESSEL

CALDER.—London, Apr. 21.—[illegible] inquiry, Lloyd's Shipping Agent at [illegible] Grimsby to-day as follows:—Steamer Calder: Regret L.M.S. have no further news of vessel now overdue. (Issue of Apr. 21.)

London, Apr. 21.—The Goole manager of the L.M.S. Railway stated to-day that they were greatly anxious about the steamer Calder, which left Hamburg for Goole at 11 p.m. on Friday (Apr. 17), and nothing has been heard of her since. It is feared that the Calder has been delayed by bad weather or accident, or, alternatively, that the crew have been picked up by some other vessel and are unable to report. The Calder carried a crew of about twenty, mostly Goole men. She was a new vessel, built last year.

Goole, Apr. 21.—Steamer Calder: L.M.S. still without further news. Understand their representative has gone to Skegness for purpose of identifying lifeboat, also that vessel's cargo consisted of about 700 tons potatoes and 300 tons general. Lloyd's Agent.

CALDER.—London, Apr. 21.—A flying boat from Felixstowe has been requisitioned to search the East Coast for the missing steamer Calder, which is overdue at Goole from Hamburg. One of the chief officers of the L.M.S. East Coast Line visited Skegness to-day and identified the lifebuoy that has been washed ashore as belonging to the Calder. Another vessel, the steamer the Hobbie, on arrival at Goole stated that on Sunday morning (Apr. 19) when about the mouth of the Humber, the pilot observed a number of crates similar to those which the Calder was carrying on deck. In addition to the flying boat [illegible] aeroplanes [illegible] to-day joined the search [illegible]
